

Information Systems Engineering PhD Goals

1. To prepare and enable students to conduct state-of-the-art original basic research, as well as high-quality translational research, which transforms this basic research into a form that can positively impact society's well-being.
2. To prepare students for a research career in which these skills are rewarded, be it in academia, industry, or government.