

Writing Center

Learning Outcomes

A student who visits the writing center should be able to:

- Understand that peer tutors are not teachers and cannot predict or give grades.
- Understand the writing center's focus on better writers
- Recognize the relationship between writing and thinking.
- Recognize the difference between revision and proofreading.
- Develop awareness about his/her existing and developing skill set as writers and critical thinkers.
- Use tools of composing discussed or developed in a session to launch his/her next step as writers.